The paint was flying through the Moose Lodge Saturday afternoon as the city's first responders squared off against each other and a team from Classic Communities in a no-holds barred paintball tournament.

The usually staid police, ambulance and fire crews had a hard time containing their enthusiasm as they ambushed and pinned each other down in the confines of the basement, dining room and the narrow halls of the building.

The fire department team were quite proud and a little boisterous after downing the police team during the morning portion of the contest and made sure to rub it in.

The emergency medical services team were also ecstatic and in high spirits after defeating the Classic Communities team.

Many of the participants sported a few bumps and bruises after being shot at close range but none complained as all enjoyed the afternoon.

Tournament organizer Kris Trail said the event was a success with charities from the Special Olympics, Burn Society and Rotary Rescue as well as the local Big Brothers and Sisters chapter all benefiting from the fundraising event.
